Dear League Members and Friends,

We received the following request for help from the Museum of the American Revolution in Philadelphia. Perhaps you can provide assistance.

I am reaching out from the curatorial department at the museum of the American Revolution regarding an upcoming exhibition at the Museum, When Women Lost the Vote: A Revolutionary Story, 1776-1807. This exhibit is scheduled for August 2020 - March of 2021, to coincide with the 100th anniversary of the 19th amendment of the US Constitution, and will center on the period under the New Jersey State Constitution from 1776-1807 in which women property holders in New Jersey could vote.

We are currently conducting primary research for the exhibition, working to locate and identify objects and concepts from the eighteenth century/Revolutionary/Federal period that might speak to women’s experiences, and I am hoping you might be able to help us in this endeavor. The League of Historical Societies of New Jersey boasts an impressive list of local and statewide cultural and historical institutions and members that we believe could truly enrich our exhibition and allow us to elevate New Jersey’s local collections and spotlight New Jersey and its contributions to women’s history in a unique and compelling way. We are wondering what might be the best way to reach your members, in order to share our call for New Jersey women’s objects? I have included a brief summary of what we’re looking for in the next paragraph, but I would be happy to follow up with a more detailed and thorough document for possible distribution. Any involvement or assistance LHSNJ can lend to our search is greatly appreciated.

We’re broadly looking for any objects relating to women, or even families, from the periods of our interest: including but not limited to samplers, dresses, shoes, ownership-inscribed books, letters, hats, umbrellas, glasses, smoking implements, armaments, etc., and/or anything architectural or scenic from the areas where New Jersey women voted or acted politically, or performed any role.

Thank you in advance for your consideration and for any insight and help you can provide. Please get back to me at your earliest convenience, either by email or phone (below), and please let me know if you have any additional questions or concerns. I look forward to hearing back from you and learning of any potential leads LHSNJ can provide.

Sincerely,

Marcela Micucci, Ph.D., Curatorial Fellow, Museum of the American Revolution, 101 S. Third Street, Philadelphia, PA 19106; Office: 267-579-3484; mmicucci@amrevmuseum.org

THE PRESIDENT’S CORNER

Thank you to everyone in New Jersey History for reaching out to his or her elected representatives. Please continue to establish lines of communications with those who will decide on the future of financial support to the New Jersey history community.

I am encouraging you and your organization to take advantage of the 2019 American Association for State and Local History in Philadelphia this summer from August 28-31 in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

The AASLH Conference rotates between cities in different parts of the country and has not been close to us in more than ten years. The AASLH is the perfect organization to provide resources for the small to medium history organizations of New Jersey. You get to become up to date on the latest trends and what works for other organizations just like you. https://aaslh.org/2019annualmeeting/ for more details.

AASLH is also the group that developed the Standards and Excellence Program for History Organizations (StEPs). StEPs is a useful tool of self-evaluation and capacity building that helps meet the mandate of the New Jersey Historical Commission to become part of a program of guided improvement.

NJ Women Vote: The 19th Amendment at 100

We want to welcome the League as a partner in the New Jersey 2020 celebrations called NJ Women Vote: The 19th Amendment at 100.

Now that we have our new logo developed, the next project for the Communications Committee is to create awareness among partner organizations about upcoming events planned for this important yearlong celebration, which will in turn spark public interest across the state.

Our goals are to:
1. Create public awareness in New Jersey about this important historic milestone with social media posts, PR releases, community events, and web content.

2. Offer educational information about the suffrage movement and its inequalities by providing links to key websites, articles, and photos.

3. Organize and publicize information on events happening across the state at a wide variety of organizations via a calendar under the NJ Women Vote tab on the Discover NJ History website (http://discovernjhistory.org/). (Create a calendar for the year that lists when & where events are happening in 2020). We will also share this content across our social media networks,

4. Create a basic timeline that highlights approximate dates that the communications committee will execute its goals.

What we need from all our partner organizations:

The Friends of Abraham Staats House, Inc. was established in 1999 and incorporated in 2004 to support the ongoing restoration, preservation and interpretation of the historic Abraham Staats House, which was built c. 1740 near the banks of the Raritan River. The property is associated with significant people and events during the American Revolution. It is also associated with the growth of the community in the early 19th century, when the Delaware & Raritan Canal was constructed between the house and the river. The house remained a private home until it was acquired by the Borough of South Bound Brook in 1999 with grant assistance provided by Somerset County (the previous owner was given life tenancy). With foresight and through thoughtful negotiation, the Borough has insured that this important site will remain in the public domain. It was placed in the New Jersey and National Registers of Historic Places in 2002.

The Abraham Staats House is one of the finest surviving buildings from the Dutch settlement of the Raritan Valley in the 18th century. Over the centuries the house has been expanded several times and now includes a fine late Federal/Greek Revival two-story addition.

The house had an interesting history during the American Revolution when it served as the headquarters of General von Steuben during the second Middlebrook Cantonment (1779).

The Friends’ mission is to support the ongoing care and restoration of the house and its grounds and to research and interpret the history of the property and its people. The goal is to foster an understanding of this history and its relationship to the history of South Bound Brook, surrounding communities, the State of New Jersey, and our country. To promote this understanding, the Friends develop and present public and educational programs, exhibits, publications, and presentations in various media.

Although not primarily a collecting institution, the Friends gather and preserve historic artifacts, documents and other material to assist in interpreting the Abraham Staats House, the site, and its history. The Friends also serve as a host organization, displaying outside collections and materials to enhance the interpretation.

To achieve these goals, the Friends solicit grants and contributions and seek other sources of income.

The Friends are committed to creating a broad and inclusive constituency, to fostering collaborative partnerships, and to strengthening a sense of community and pride in South Bound Brook’s local heritage and history.

The house is the center of activity each spring during the Battle of Bound Brook. You are invited to join the fun on the second weekend of April for an exciting and historic time. The two-day program explores the American Revolutionary War during the timeframe of the Battle of Bound Brook and the foraging wars of 1777. Learn about and experience this important period in New Jersey’s and America’s history.

Betty Wagner—In Memoriam

Elizabeth Marie Smith Wagner passed away on May 22, 2018. She was born in East Brunswick, NJ, on October 22, 1917 and was the middle child of nine children. Betty was Valedictorian of her St. Peter’s High School class and graduated Magna Cum Laude and Phi Beta Kappa from Duke University. She earned a Master’s Degree in Library Science from the University of Michigan and served as director of the new Fremont Public Library in Fremont, Michigan where she worked with planning the separation of the public library from the school library. She determined the direction the new library should take and developed the new library’s collections and programs. She was employed as Director of Library Services at Young & Rubicam, Inc. in New York from 1956 until 1971. At that time, it was the second largest advertising agency in the world. Betty held offices and positions in many library associations.

In 1970, Betty married William Wagner, who predeceased her by three months, and they moved to Cranbury on February 14, 1971. They joined the Cranbury Historical & Preservation Society, organized in 1967, and Betty became involved in its activities. She began organizing papers, documents and books in order to establish a society library. She served as a trustee, docent, historian, and librarian for the society and chaired the Special Project committee, worked on the newsletter and the walking tour booklet, and was a member of the society’s Historic Preservation, Acquisitions, Associations & Public Relations and Finance committees. Betty organized house tours and was director of the History Center. She was president of the Society for eleven years and, in recent years, was an Honorary Trustee.

In addition to her work with the society, Betty was a member of the Woman’s Club of Cranbury for several years. She was a member of the Township Planning Board from 1981 to 1992 and was Township Historian for 25 years. As society president, she chaired Cranbury’s Bicentennial, Tercentennial and Town Hall Dedication committees and was a member of Middlesex County’s Tercentennial Advisory Committee. She worked with the Crossroads of the American Revolution Association in its efforts to promote Cranbury and other historic sites located in the National Heritage area.

Betty was instrumental in the society’s receipt of a matching grant from the Critical Issues Fund of the National Trust for Historic Preservation. With those funds and matching funds from Cranbury citizens, she and the Preservation Committee hired nationally recognized preservationists to provide input on the importance of historic preservation in Cranbury. Utilizing the preservation reports, she continued to fight for historic preservation through farmland and open space preservation. Betty worked to have Cranbury placed in the State and National Register of Historic Places. She also assisted in developing Cranbury’s historic preservation ordinance. Through her efforts and those of others, the Hess Farmstead on Prospect Plains Road, the Holland House on Station Road and the Gristmiller’s House, now the Elizabeth M. Wagner History Center, were saved.

In 1976, Betty received a Certificate of Merit from the League of Historical Societies in New Jersey and a certificate of recognition from the Daughters of the American Revolution for her outstanding work on the Bicentennial. In 1993, she was the recipient of the Local Historians Award of Distinction, a statewide honor given to individuals for their outstanding contributions to local or regional historical programs, and in 1997, she was recognized for her outstanding achievements by the New Jersey General Assembly. Betty has received several other honors over the years, and through her remarkable volunteer efforts, she has inspired and motivated many. She appreciates having had the opportunity to work with a community as receptive and responsive as Cranbury.

In 2013, Betty and Bill moved to Monroe Village in Monroe Township and often returned to Cranbury for social gatherings, meetings, and events. Betty celebrated her 100th birthday on October 22, 2017. A reception was held in her honor at the Cranbury Museum on November 12, 2017. The Cranbury History Center was dedicated as the Elizabeth M. Wagner History Center on November 11, 2018.

To Donate or Not to Donate

“But you were always a good man of business Jacob, faltered Scrooge, who now began to apply this to himself. Business! cried the Ghost, wringing its hands. Mankind was my business; charity, mercy, forbearance and benevolence, were, all, my business. The details of my trade were but a drop of water in the comprehensive ocean of my business!” — Charles Dickens, A Christmas Carol

Americans donated an impressive 410 billion dollars in 2017, according to Charity Navigator.

While a large percentage of that amount was cash, a significant and important amount was represented by non-cash charitable donations. Unlike Jacob Marley, with a little planning and advice, you can decide how you would like to give to a charity. Determining whether a non-cash, charitable donation is the right path for you or your clients depends on the nature of the material to be donated, the appropriateness of the institution to accept the donation, and the involvement of your tax and financial advisors.

Firstly, what is it that you would like to donate? Books, clothing, and furniture can be offered to libraries, hospitals, churches and related thrift stores. These institutions will furnish a donation form that will identify them as a 501(c)(3) tax exempt corporation, and you (the donor) will fill in the value amount of the items. Be careful with your values as the IRS takes the word “charitable” very seriously. For any items valued greater than $500.00, the taxpayer must attach IRS form 8283 to their return and complete Section A. You can claim up to $5000.00 in value without engaging a professional appraiser to create a certified, written report; however, an objective professional appraiser can also help organize and focus your collection to determine if and where that collection might be donated.

Once you have identified the institution that would like your items, a deed of gift will be supplied to you that will specify the exact nature of the donation and the anticipated date of donation. Dates now become very important. If the expected fair market values warrant it, a qualified appraiser could now be hired providing that they inspect the items no more than sixty days prior to their ownership by the institution.

Furthermore, the donee must be able to justify the items acceptance based on related use. For example, a North Jersey historical society might not be the ideal place for paintings of the beaches of Manasquan, but it might be the right fit if the artist was a North Jersey native. Likewise, certain college collections are expanded and deepened thanks to their alumni relations and support. It should also be understood at the time of donation if the items will be displayed and if there is an agreement for deaccession or selling the items at some time in the future.

Guidance and input from your legal and financial professionals as well as the hiring of a qualified appraiser, who is compliant with USPAP (Uniform Standards of Professional Appraisal Practice) will make your donation process easier and more productive. With so many recent changes to tax laws and given the specifics of personal situations, no professional appraiser has all the answers, but should always know where to get them.

On Saturday, April 6, 2019 the League of Historical Societies of New Jersey met at the Ocean County Library for the Southern Region Meeting.

Our hosts, the Ocean County Historical Society (OCHS), greeted us with a sumptuous breakfast as members renewed acquaintance with old friends and met new members from around the state. Delegates represented societies from Bayonne to Cape May and many in between: Buena, Ocean City, Madison, and so many more places.

After welcomes from Freeholder Ginny Haines and Tom River Mayor Thomas Kelaher and the League business meeting, OCHS president Brian Bovasso introduced society vice-president Jeffrey Schenker. Jeff gave us an overview of World War I and New Jersey’s involvement in the war.

Tim Hart, executive director of the Ocean County Cultural and Heritage Commission and League president, presented a speedy and humorous look at Camp Dix and Ocean County’s participation in the war. The morning’s events concluded with Dr. Barbara Godbold’s illustrated talk on the influenza pandemic during WWI.

After lunch, with a wide array of choices, the members headed out to visit sites, including the OCHS Pierson-Sculthorp House, the county courthouse, the John F. Peto Studio in Island Heights, the Tuckerton Seaport Museum, and the Cedar Bridge Tavern (below, left). The latter, newly restored by Ocean County, is deep in the Pine Barrens in Barnegat Township. Guides shared the history of the tavern, including the capture of Captain John Bacon, a leader of a band of Loyalist fighters who hid out in the Pine Barrens and preyed upon Patriots toward the end of the American Revolution. The group was responsible for the October 1782 Long Beach Island Massacre. He and his band were relentlessly pursued and Bacon was killed the following March while resisting capture (considered by several historians to be the last casualty of the war).

We learned that the tavern served a beverage called Flip, which consisted of rum, beer, sugar, and an egg, often heated with a hot poker.

Many exhibits and interpretive signs, both inside and out, provided information about the tavern, the Pine Barrens fires that never touched the tavern, and actions of the War of 1812 and the American Revolution.

A caretaker’s home (seen at right in the photo on the left) is a new construction but blends in well with the historic site.

The League thanks the OCHS and the Cultural and Heritage Commission for a delightful day in Ocean County.

June 7-October 27 at Morven Museum and Garden
From the Cradle to the Major Leagues: New Jersey Baseball 1855-1915

Opening Reception, Thursday, June 6 from 5:30 - 7:00 p.m. Reception is free and open to the public.

Perhaps more than any other American sport, the history and origins of baseball are shrouded in myth and mystery. While a game called baseball was played in this country as early as the colonial period, organized baseball, the direct ancestor of today’s game, began in New York City in the 1840s. About 1855, baseball began a growth spurt, especially in New Jersey where population density along with relatively sophisticated transportation and communication systems greatly facilitated the game’s expansion. During that period some notable baseball firsts, including the founding of the first African-American club, the first interscholastic game, and some of the earliest documented women’s games all took place in New Jersey. The state’s role in the early development of the organized game was of such importance that New Jersey can be justly described as a cradle of the National Pastime.

Beginning in June of 2019, Morven Museum & Garden will host an exhibit on New Jersey baseball, 1855-1915 that will tell the story of the state’s important role in the history of early organized baseball through artifacts, text, images and other visuals. The exhibit will describe the nature of the first New Jersey baseball clubs, the differences between 19th-century baseball and the modern game and areas of special interest such as the African-American experience and women’s participation. The exhibit will be interactive and will also offer educational opportunities plus demonstrations with hands-on possibilities. Simultaneous with opening the exhibit, Morven will publish a companion book that will bring the story of early New Jersey baseball to a wider audience and allow for more in depth understanding.

Dear League Members,

We hope that you will patronize our business supporters. Please consider inviting retail or commercial businesses to become Business Members of the League of Historical Societies of New Jersey and support our mission of promoting the preservation of the historical heritage of New Jersey by stimulating among member organizations the development of programs, projects, and publications that celebrate this heritage.

THE PALACE OF DEPRESSION IS BEING RESTORED IN VINELAND

By Linda Barth

On a recent jaunt to the southern counties of New Jersey, my husband and I visited the Palace of Depression in Vineland. This remarkable structure, originally called the Fantastic Palace, was built by George Daynor, a former Klondike gold miner. George had lost his fortune in the stock market crash of 1929 and had only $4 to his name when he wandered into Vineland, New Jersey. He was nearly hit by a car, the driver of which turned out to be a real estate salesman. George bought four acres, at a dollar an acre, on South Mill Street. Reaching the site, he learned that he had purchased swamp land with an automobile junkyard scattered across it. Weary and discouraged, he climbed into an old truck body and fell asleep, dreaming of angels who tell him that everything he needs to prosper is right in front of him.

Revitalized by this vision, George began draining the swamp and dragging together the old car parts, clay, and mud. After three years of hard work, he opened his Fantastic Castle to the public on Christmas Day 1932. Now calling it the Palace of Depression, George made a living by giving tours of his eighteen-spired, pastel-colored castle to over 250,000 people, charging twenty-five cents per person. He referred to his creation as “the greatest piece of originality ever brought about in the history of Man.” The popularity of his castle lasted into the late 1950s.

In 1956 George Daynor gave to the federal authorities false information about the kidnapping of Peter Weinberger, a nationally known case. He falsely claimed that the kidnappers had visited the palace. This stunt landed him in jail for a year. Daynor was a publicity hog and claimed to be “the most photographed man in the world.” In 1964 he died of old age. The original palace was ransacked, looted, and eventually destroyed. The property, now a safety hazard, was sold to the City of Vineland and torn down in 1969, leaving behind only the original ticket booth (left).

In 1998 Kevin Kirchner, director of the city’s licenses and inspection department, learned that the property was up for sale. He asked to delay the sale and looked around for others who shared his dream of rebuilding the palace. Using private funding and donations, not taxpayer dollars, he won approval from the mayor and council and broke ground for the reconstruction in 2001. For nearly two decades Kevin has used volunteer workers to complete this project.

The interior and exterior stone walls are punctuated with colored glass, statues, circular openings, car parts, and other doodads. A tunnel, gates, and a marvelous wooden staircase are among the re-creations. To see more photos, turn the page.

Now president of the Palace of Depression Restoration Association, Kevin has almost completely rebuilt the Palace. We stopped by in early April and got a tour of this fascinating place, which is expected to be done in two years.

In addition to the palace, Kevin and his crew have built a history museum and visitor center next door.
If you would like to tour the Palace at 265 South Mill Road, appointments can be scheduled by writing to Kevin (center left) at thepalaceofdepression@comcast.net. Or you can just drive by for a look. If he’s there, he may stop work and show you around.

Abandoned or Forgotten: Overlooked Corners of South Jersey
By Ryan Stowinsky

Despite being part of the most densely populated state in the United States, much of southern New Jersey is uninhabited Pine Barrens, marshland, and even shoreline, hiding secrets such as ghost towns, forgotten cemeteries, and other little-known historical places largely overlooked by most people.

Abandoned or Forgotten: Overlooked Corners of South Jersey is a collection of several of these sites found throughout the southern half of the state, both on and off the beaten path. Explore long-abandoned towns in the Pine Barrens and even along the shore. Discover relics from both World Wars on the beach and in the woods. Visit the site where the world’s first nearly complete dinosaur skeleton was unearthed. Learn about New Jersey’s answer to the Boston Tea Party during the American Revolution. In these pages, author and photographer Ryan Stowinsky takes the reader to these sites and several more. With dozens of photographs and directions to most locations, readers can discover the history that is hidden all around them.

Surviving Sandy: Long Beach Island and the Greatest Storm of the Jersey Shore
By Scott Mazzella

Superstorm Sandy was an epic storm, the greatest natural disaster in the Jersey Shore’s recorded history. Throughout Southern Ocean County it disrupted lives and rearranged neighborhoods. It was a defining moment and, for many, a hard lesson about complacency, natural forces, and building castles on shifting sand.

In this full-color hardcover, readers experience the superstorm from its inception to its devastating impact on the Long Beach Island area, and through the triumphs and tribulations our battered shore communities experienced in the days and weeks afterward. Like its survivors, you come away shaken but determined, with a new appreciation for the power of nature and the fragility of things we hold dear.

This is the first book with a comprehensive narrative story of the storm—not just photographs and captions. And although it focuses on the Long Beach Island community, that narrative also represents much of the experience of the entire Jersey Shore.

Read about Superstorm Sandy through the accounts of residents and first responders from Long Beach Island, Beach Haven West, West Creek, Tuckerton Beach, and more. See just why Superstorm Sandy is the “Greatest Storm of the Jersey Shore.”

The full-color book includes 256 photographs from the height of the storm and the aftermath and recovery.
Weather experts explore the incredible meteorology of Hurricane Sandy and its metamorphosis into a hybrid superstorm. Residents and first responders share their personal stories—their fears, their bravery, their fortitude, and, ultimately, their acceptance.

Because so few people actually remained on the front lines, these first-hand stories from inside the storm are an extraordinary look at landfall and human response. Each of us was affected by the tribulations our battered shore endured after landfall. And, in the end, the triumph of our spirit defines us all -- how we picked ourselves up, got to work on recovery, and generously helped others by lending a hand, donating, or offering a shoulder to cry on.

Surviving Sandy offers a historical narrative and helps guide us to rebuild stronger and hopefully smarter.

See why Superstorm Sandy is the Greatest Storm of the Jersey Shore. The full-color book includes 256 photographs from the height of the storm, the aftermath, and the recovery. Published by Down The Shore Publishing -- the regional publisher of the landmark 1993 history, Great Storms of the Jersey Shore and other coastal titles -- it includes a Foreword and Introduction from Great Storms authors Margaret Thomas Buchholz and Larry Savadove.

Alice Paul: Champion of Women’s Suffrage
By Linda J. Barth

Who would have thought that a quiet Quaker girl from South Jersey would one day change the world? When Alice Stokes Paul was born in Mount Laurel, New Jersey in 1885, only men were allowed to vote in the United States. Raised in the Quaker faith, Alice believed in “ordinary equality” for all people. Her religion taught her to try to correct injustice in the world, and she viewed this as a major injustice.

Early in the 20th century Alice Paul worked with several groups in an effort to achieve suffrage for American women.

With her leadership, President Woodrow Wilson, the United States Congress, and the state legislatures finally passed the 19th Amendment.

Aimed at young readers as well as adults, this book tells the story of her failures and ultimate success to reach that goal.

In 2016 the National Park Service dedicated as a historic site the Belmont-Paul Women’s Equality National Monument, the home that served as the National Woman’s Party headquarters in Washington, DC. It was from this house that Alice Paul and Alva Belmont organized the picketing at the White House that ultimately led to the passage of the 19th Amendment.

6"x9", many historic photographs. Available at Amazon.com or by contacting the author at 908-240-0488 or barthlinda123@aol.com.

Mystery, Millions & Murder in North Jersey:
The Tragic Kidnapping of Exxon’s Sidney Reso
By John E. O'Rourke

On a spring morning in Morristown in 1992, authorities discovered a car idling in a driveway with the door open and the driver missing. After they learned that the driver was Sidney Reso, the president of Exxon International, the FBI joined the investigation.

Over the next two months, law enforcement received cryptic communications that led to a cat-and-mouse chase for those responsible. Retired cop Arthur Seale and his wife, Irene, demanded one of the largest ransoms in U.S. history, and authorities struggled to solve the case. Author John E. O’Rourke recounts the crime that rocked a sleepy community and brought the nation’s eyes to North Jersey.

John E. O’Rourke was born in Pequannock, New Jersey and raised in the Passaic County town of Wanaque. He is a retired New Jersey state trooper with twenty-six years of experience with the elite organization. During his distinguished career, he conducted hundreds of criminal investigations ranging from criminal trespass to murder. In addition to his writing, Mr. O’Rourke is a security consultant. He has authored the books Jersey Troopers: Sacrifice at the Altar of Public Service, New Jersey State Troopers, 1961–2011: Remembering the Fallen and The Jersey Shore Thrill Killer: Richard Biegenwald.
