THE PRESIDENT’S CORNER

What a terrific day we had at Ocean Grove! It was good to see some friends from the past and to make new ones. It’s what makes our meetings so special for me.

One of the benefits of getting together with you at meetings is that you continue to give us good ideas about how we can improve. Sometimes finances or manpower prevent us from implementing them even though we wish we could. At this meeting we received a wonderful suggestion from Betty Wagner (of Cranbury) and we are excited to share it with you. Betty observed that it wasn’t possible to know which people in the room were board members. She explained that it would be helpful to be able to identify the trustees and vice-president from her region, as well as to know the secretary, treasurer and membership chair who are usually visible.

As a board, we hadn’t considered this before. What a good idea and how easy to do! At the October meeting in South Orange, as we come to the podium, we will take greater care to introduce ourselves to you. We’ll recognize all the board members who are present by having them stand for you to see. Between now and then, we’ll be thinking about how we can best distinguish them by region. We’d like you to know and freely communicate with your regional representatives. You’ll find that they’re the first line of help when regional meetings are being arranged. And, we hope that, at some time, you will each host a meeting.

As always, we welcome your feedback and participation. The League is your organization; it is here to serve YOU!

JB Vogt, President

VOTERS TO DECIDE IN NOVEMBER: WILL NJ HISTORIC TRUST GRANTS AND OPEN SPACE AND FARMLAND PRESERVATION CONTINUE?

On June 25, the State Legislature voted with strong bipartisan support in the Senate (26 Yes, 7 No) and Assembly (66 Yes, 9 No, 3 Abstain) to let the New Jersey voters decide in November whether to continue the state’s investments in open space. The 129-organization coalition, the New Jersey – Keep It Green Campaign, with Preservation New Jersey as a leading member of the group, applauded this overwhelming support.

The timing was crucial, with the Garden State Preservation Trust essentially empty and no longer able to fund NJ Historic Trust restoration grants or undertake new land preservation vital to New Jersey’s water supply, health, and prosperity. The GSPT has been pivotal in supporting statewide and local efforts to provide for open space, parks, farmland preservation, and historic preservation.

Twelve senators and thirty-seven assembly members sponsored or co-sponsored the legislation. “Our elected officials have put their faith in voters to make the call on the future of New Jersey’s open space,” said Thomas Gilmore, Chairman of the NJ-Keep It Green coalition that favors the $400 million bond issue. “Every time New Jersey voters have been given that choice in a statewide ballot, they have voted in favor of open space investments because of the immediate and future value we experience for ourselves, our children, and our grandchildren.” Voters have approved all twelve of the statewide open space ballot issues since 1961.

VISIT SOUTH ORANGE, NEW JERSEY

On Saturday, October 3, 2009, the Montrose Park Historic District Association (MPHDA) in South Orange Village will host the Fall Meeting of the League of Historical Societies of New Jersey at St. Andrew’s and Holy Communion Church. We hope you will join us for an informative and fun day. In addition to the meeting, attendees will have an opportunity to learn about the history of our village and participate in two self-guided tours: St. Andrew & Holy Communion’s sanctuary with its renowned Tiffany stained glass windows, and two fabulous homes in the Montrose Park Historic District. Naoma Welk, author of the bestselling Arcadia press publications, Images of America South Orange and Images of America South Orange Revisited, will present a lecture and slideshow overview of the history of South Orange Village.

MPHDA was established in 1994 as a part of a grassroots preservation effort initiated by several Montrose Park residents. Fundraising and publicity efforts, including the Montrose in May Historic House Tour, as well as extensive research, resulted in the 1997 designation of Montrose Park on both the State and National Historic Registers. Today, the formalized association of that grassroots effort is MPHDA, a 501(c)(3) nonprofit corporation, whose mission is to promote, preserve, and document the history of Montrose Park and South Orange.

Through the mid-19th century, much of South Orange Village and the surrounding area was open farmland. A map from 1860, when South Orange was part of Orange, shows only a few streets with several houses clustered along South Orange Avenue. Circa 1860, John Gorham Vose, a lawyer and businessman from New York, began spending summers in the Orange Valley (an area adjacent to present-day South Orange) and was taken with its natural beauty. He soon bought farmland, eventually owning over 175 acres, and developed a garden suburb he called Montrose Park. When Vose sold off parcels of his property, the deeds restricted building to large houses, “suitable for a gentleman’s country residence,” on sizeable lots. He further banned commercial enterprises and public buildings, excepting churches. Later developers, including Thomas S. Kingman, expanded Montrose Park and adopted similar restrictions. The deed restrictions initiated by Vose and Kingman have clearly helped to maintain the character of the area.

Today, Montrose Park exists as the elegant suburban development envisioned by Vose. Primarily a residential neighborhood, it is characterized by elegant, large-scale homes, dating from the last quarter of the nineteenth century through the late 1930s. These architecturally-significant houses are set on large, landscaped lots, outlined by bluestone sidewalks and curbs, framed by mature trees and shrubbery, and lit by Victorian gaslight. Historic Preservation Consultant Ulana Zakalak reported that “with over 500 contributing properties, Montrose Park is one of the largest historic districts in the State of New Jersey.” Montrose homes represent a variety of architectural styles from the Victorian period including: Queen Anne, Tudor Revival, Colonial Revival, Italian Renaissance Revival, Shingle Style, Stick Style, and Arts & Crafts Influence.

We hope you will visit South Orange and learn more about MPHDA at the Fall Meeting of the League of Historical Societies of New Jersey on October 3, 2009. Use the form on page 11 to sign up and join us for a fabulous fall day in South Orange!

LETTERS, WE GET LETTERS….

My initial inquiry to one member has magically produced many emails regarding restoration of our founding father’s portraits! They are still coming in. I thanked each member, but I needed to let you know how much we appreciate the League’s help!

Marge Disch, Secretary, Merchantville Historical Society

Richard Dreyfus said it well when he commented that “Americans need to know America again.”

At a recent meeting of the Harmony Township Historical Society, we captured some of his meaning by showing the NJN film, “Ten Crucial Days—The Road to Liberty.” The story is told of General Washington’s Continental Army, after its long retreat across New Jersey, undertaking the perilous crossing of the Delaware River several times under very trying conditions to defeat the British and Hessians at the battles of Trenton and Princeton. The ten days portrayed in this turning point of America’s struggle for independence and the birth of the democracy we now enjoy is a must for all our citizens to revisit in order to appreciate what we have and what our forebears went through to get it for us.

I believe that two dramatic steps need to be taken to help Americans to “know America again.” First, every school curriculum needs to spend more time educating its students as to what our past heroes have gone through to bring us our freedom. Second, to better educate all of our citizens, I believe that our national government needs to combine the Pennsylvania and New Jersey Washington Crossing state parks into one gigantic national historic park, depicting those striking “Ten Crucial Days” with a visitor center as dramatic as the one that recently opened at Gettysburg National Military Park.

Henry F. Skirbst, President, Harmony Township Historical Society; life member American Legion and NJEA

Editor’s note: We encourage Mr. Skirbst and the Harmony Township Historical Society to contact the National Park Service and the New Jersey Department of Education with these suggestions.

OUR MEMBERS’ WONDERFUL MUSEUMS by Linda J. Barth

Wow! So many of our members have outstanding museums, and I have determined to visit them. If you would like to see these unique sites, too, let me help you. I am creating a list of members’ museums. By October it should be done, and I would be happy to send it to the membership.

Over the years I have had the pleasure of visiting many wonderful historic sites in the Garden State. This summer my husband and I are continuing that tour, in an effort to see the museums of the members of the League of Historical Societies of New Jersey.

Our first venture was to the southwestern region of our state. We stopped first at the Millville Army Air Field Museum at the Millville Airport. A wealth of exhibits and a video explained the training there of the pilots of P-47 Thunderbolts. I especially enjoyed the display about the Wright brothers and the museum’s cute, friendly cat.

From there we headed for Salem and the Hancock House, site of a massacre of colonists by the British in 1778. En route home we stopped at the Peter Mott House in Lawnside. Although the home is not usually open on Sundays, Lawnside Historical Society president, Linda Shockley, graciously offered to open the doors for us. She explained how the house had been saved from destruction and its importance in the Underground Railroad.

The following week we went north to Hudson and Bergen counties and stopped first at the Hoboken Museum & Cultural Center. Society president Bob Foster showed us the new exhibit, “Up and Down the River,” commemorating Henry Hudson’s “visit” 400 years ago, and gave us a tour of the neighborhood.

From there we headed north to the Meadowlands Museum in Rutherford. Curator Jackie Bunker–Lohrenz (continued on page nine) showed us this gold mine of local and New Jersey information, including minerals, an early 1900s kitchen, and a display about local authors. But the highlight is the gearing for an Otis elevator that raised and lowered horses at a local stable.

Our final stop was the Hermitage in Ho-Ho-Kus, the home of the Prevost and Rosencrantz families. Our guide, Barbara Connolly, conducted us through this beautiful home, telling the fascinating story of its many residents.

During our Elderhostel in Cape May, we had the privilege of meeting Dr. Joe Salvatore, co-founder of Naval Air Station Wildwood, whose aircraft and other displays in Hangar #1 commemorate the Navy airmen who died while training her during World War II. On a tour of Historic Cold Spring Village I met Ann Salvatore, co-founder with Joe, of this wonderful collection of historic structures from around Cape May County. Additionally, at a concert sponsored by the Mid-Atlantic Center for the Arts, I met Director Michael Zuckerman.

In early August my travels took me to Morris County to visit the Butler and Morris Plains museums. At Butler, Peggy Spranzani gave me a tour of her site, which occupies the old NY Susquehanna & Western Railroad Station. I was impressed by the variety of items, and by the exhibit on the Statue of Liberty. Visit and find out why it’s there.

Mary Palmer showed me around the Morris Plains Museum, pointing out the exhibit on the local artist, Homer Davenport and one on two sisters who were famous fashion models in the mid-20th century. I really enjoyed the extensive collection of maps and photographs.

I look forward to visiting more local museums in the coming months.

SPOTLIGHT ON OUR MEMBER ORGANIZATIONS

With our members spread across the state, many of us are not familiar with the organizations in regions far from our own. This column will spotlight our members, so that others may learn of their mission and accomplishments.

The league has many member organizations that were formed to honor or remember a specific group of people. This is Part VI of a series highlighting those societies.

Historic Cold Spring Village is an Early American, open-air, living history museum. The village brings to life the day-to-day activities of people living in South Jersey during the “age of homespun” (1790-1840). Visitors can make a personal connection between the past and present through the interactive, educational, and hands-on family activities. Take a stroll along the twenty-two acres of shaded lanes; enjoy the gardens; observe the farm where heritage crops are grown; visit twenty-six restored antique buildings housing historically-clothed interpreters, who educate and entertain visitors about the lifestyles, issues, trades, and crafts of yesteryear. Children enjoy playing at the activity area where they take part in a variety of projects such as trying on costumes, participating in hands-on crafts, and playing games. The Friends of Historic Cold Spring Village is a non-profit organization whose mission is to support the preservation of Historic Cold Spring Village. Events include a quilt show, farm days, culture fest, railroad days, an antique show, seafarers’ weekend, and encampments of Civil War and Revolutionary War soldiers. You may contact the village or the friends at 720 Route 9, Cape May, NJ 08204; 609-898-1919; www.hcsv.org.

The mission of the Museum of Early Trades & Crafts is to enhance the understanding and appreciation of America's past by presenting and interpreting the history, culture, and lives of ordinary people through educational programs, through preservation and stewardship of its collection, and through exhibition and demonstration of the trades and crafts practiced in New Jersey from its earliest settlement. Exhibits feature the activities of New Jersey farming families, highlighting the diverse facets of agricultural life in the early 1800s; a selection from the extensive collection of woodworkers’ planes; how tradesmen in small towns worked together to develop a bustling economy; the working lives of four circa 1850 local tradesmen; and the tools that a distiller, a cooper, a shoemaker, and a cabinetmaker would have used to craft their wares. A new, permanent exhibit, The Essential Trade: Blacksmithing in America, explores the important work of blacksmiths in American history and traces the history and processes of blacksmithing from its origins about 3000 years ago. You may contact the museum at 9 Main Street, Madison, NJ 07940; 973-377-2982; www.metc.org; info@metc.org.

The Holcombe-Jimison Farmstead Museum, which hosted the League in 2008, is dedicated to the preservation of Hunterdon County's agricultural heritage from the 18th into the 20th century. The museum is housed in the restored three-story bank barn that was built into the hillside to make both floors accessible from ground level. Livestock were kept on the lower level, crops above. In bad weather, the farmer could feed the animals without going outdoors. Today, some of the exhibits arranged in the barn feature the tools and equipment used by the farmer to raise and harvest the crops that provided fodder for livestock and commodities to sell. Other displays cover the domestic chores of the farmer's wife in the preparation and preservation of food and the making of clothing. Early examples of now common implements and appliances give the visitor a sense of passing time. The museum property was once part of John Holcombe's "Plantation," according to his will of 1742. In 1968, the farmstead was donated to the Hunterdon County Historical Society by Milo and Rachel Jimison, who retained life rights. With Milo Jimison's death, over 250 years of agricultural activity on the site ended. In 1984, the property was deeded to the Holcombe-Jimison Farmstead, Inc. Using a combination of grants from small foundations, individual donations and a substantial gift from Colonel James Horn, the museum's volunteers and trustees have restored the property and added outbuildings for the post office, blacksmith shop, carriage shed, and print shop. You may contact the museum at 1605 Daniel Bray Highway (Route 29), Lambertville, NJ 08530; 609-397-2752; www.holcombe-jimison.org.
